Just a few comments on these:

Do you want/need to articulate a policy that if the red flags cannot be resolved, the pharmacist should not fill the rx? No. Pharmacist may need to fill another script to prevent withdrawal, etc. (last and final fill). We need to word it to give them some flexibility for patient safety sake. Should you duplicate the red flags found in the P&P in the Appropriate Dispensing document? Probably

For the Excerpted P&P:

- I understand the age range red flag (16-45); however, I don't like it because my experience is that pharmacists are very literal and will give less time and energy to prescriptions written for people who are not in that age range. Not sure it hurts having it in there. Alone, doesn't really count as a red flag. This is more one that you look at if other things make you concerned.

- Should you add patient distance to "Patient Behavior" OK
- For "Prescriber Concerns" you reference "out of state." Should you also include out of trade area or locale of store? OK

Lynette – attached are copies of the appropriate dispensing materials referenced to share with Larry. It's a standalone doc and the excerpt from P&P.

Thanks.
